Course Description

Step into the whimsical world of pumpkin carving through the ages with Professor Gourdly McSquash at the School of Dandori. This seasonal activity invites adults to travel through time, learning the art of pumpkin carving as it has evolved from the Victorian era to futuristic interpretations. In the quaint setting of Cambridge, students will embark on a historical journey, mastering techniques that have both puzzled and delighted generations. During this hands-on class, participants will be equipped with premium carving knives and access to historical pumpkin patterns and space-age templates. Professor McSquash will guide you through the cultural significance of pumpkins, sharing stories that have shaped traditions over centuries. Students will also learn how to preserve their carved masterpieces using innovative methods, ensuring their creations last well beyond the season. With a focus on creative design, participants will use modern carving tools to bring imaginative, time-travel inspired designs to life. Whether crafting a Victorian lace pumpkin or experimenting with intergalactic geometric shapes, this class promises to be a delightful blend of history, art, and fun. Join us for an unforgettable journey through time that will nourish your soul and bring joy to your autumn festivities.
