Course Description

Step into the enchanting world of 'Magical Moss Mosaics' with the esteemed Professor Lichenbottom, where the serene beauty of nature meets creative expression. Hosted in the verdant heart of Edinburgh, this class is a delightfully whimsical foray into the art of crafting with moss. Students will embark on a botanical journey to learn about various moss species, understanding their unique textures and hues, and developing the skills to harvest them sustainably. Under Professor Lichenbottom's expert guidance, participants will create their own moss mosaics, transforming simple materials into vibrant, living artwork. The class will begin with a foraging session in a nearby woodland, where students will collect moss samples while learning about their ecological significance. Back in the cozy art studio, they will sketch their designs, incorporating elements of natural symmetry and balance. With the aid of eco-friendly adhesives and a selection of natural embellishments like pebbles and driftwood, participants will bring their mossy masterpieces to life, constructing intricately textured artworks that are as sustainable as they are beautiful. Throughout the session, students will also discover best practices for maintaining their creations, ensuring that their moss mosaics remain lush and lively. Perfect for nature enthusiasts and craft lovers alike, this class promises a uniquely enriching experience that combines artistic flair with environmental mindfulness.
