Course Description

Welcome to 'The Art of Puddle Jumping & Splashology,' where adults rediscover the simple joy of jumping into puddles. Led by Professor Rainwater, a seasoned expert in aquatic antics, this class takes place in York's scenic parks and streets, where puddles abound. Participants will first learn to identify different puddles, from shallow splats to the elusive deep splashes. With practical demonstrations, Professor Rainwater will guide you through proper techniques for achieving the perfect splash, emphasizing posture and jump height while considering the type of puddle. The class includes engaging discussions on the physics of water displacement and the reflective beauty of splash patterns, offering a unique blend of science and art. The provided splash measuring kit will allow you to experiment and document your progress in a field notebook, cultivating both scientific curiosity and artistic expression. This playful experience is designed to enhance balance and coordination, but most importantly, it will rekindle your sense of wonder and encourage you to embrace joyful spontaneity, even on the雨iest of days. Join us for a day of laughter, learning, and leaping into the little joys of life!
